LOVE'S SUNLIGHT

Love's Sunlight

Fair as the morn when rosy dawn is breaking,
Sweet as the song the lark sings to the skies
Would be the thought that in my heart I'd cherish
If that one thought would bring Love's Sunlight in your eyes.

All through the day would this Joy so tender hold me,
Though storm and mist might sometimes hide the blue,
My heart would sing, its burdens all forgetting,
If I knew at eve my path would lead to you.

I do not care how poor the place and lowly;
To find you there as golden daylight dies
Would make it seem like heaven sweet and holy,
For heaven just means to me Love's Sunlight in your eyes.
