spell of her beauty upon him was laid;
never had known such a rapturous bliss,
He

look'd and he long'd for the magical maid!
maid'en of mortals so sweetly can kiss!

For a sudden terror ran,
As before her feet he lay,
Right thro' the love-bewild'rd
She vanish'd in the wood a-man, And he sigh'd as a hapless lover can,

-way, And he call'd vainly till his dying day.
"Vilia, O Vilia! the witch of the wood! Would I not die for you, dear, If I could! Vilia, O Vilia, my love and my bride!" Softly and sadly he sigh'd Vilia, O Vilia, the witch of the wood!
Would I not die for you, dear, if I could?

"Vilia, O Vilia, my love and my bride!" Softly and sadly he sigh'd.
